Product short description:

Favorite and 94/100 RVF. At the end of March 2024: the 2014 vintage has arrived. Since 2011, the cuvée has been called "Les Cistes" instead of "Clos des Cistes," under the Vin de France designation rather than "Coteaux du Languedoc." Indeed, the winemaker did not like the new "Languedoc" appellation, which replaced "Coteaux du Languedoc" in 2011, so by choosing "Vin de France," she can no longer indicate the word "Clos" on her label. One of our regulations that makes foreigners laugh! No worries, neither the winemaker, nor the vines, nor the wine are changing; it's still just as good!

Domaine Peyre Rose "Les Cistes" red 2014 :

RVF Guide to the Best Wines of France 2025 (August 2024) : Favorite and 94/100. The domaine showcases superb 2014s, very open today. The smoky notes dominate the nose of Les Cistes, with hints of cold soot and meat juice. The palate is surprisingly silky for a ten-year-old Peyre Rose.

La Revue du Vin de France (Caroline Furstoss, May 2024, "the 100 wines that define the greatness of Languedoc" regarding the 2014 vintage). 2014, the vintage that dreams are made of ten years later. "It was our last vintage with juice," the Occitan winemakers declare in unison. A year less sunny than the following ones, 2014 is an excellent compromise for the reds and whites of Languedoc, with a chiseled profile, fine tannins reflecting a proper maturity in many domaines. In certain areas like Pic Saint-Loup, the volume was generous, and the winemakers were unaware of the unfortunate climatic sequence they would face in the following years. Finally, it should not be forgotten that the finest cuvées from Languedoc are never better than when they show a decade...
