Product short description:

Côte du Py is a parcel cuvée from Jean Foillard, originating from one of the most illustrious terroirs of Beaujolais. Like in Burgundy, it is a very specific climate that gives Morgon its reputation and, in great years, produces a few rare bottles of the exceptional cuvée "3.14" (which will be released after a long aging at the domaine). Note that upon their release from the winemaker's cellars in November 2025, these 2023 wines were still quite closed and deserved a few weeks (months?) of refinement before tasting.

+ ALL ITS OTHER CUVÉES IN STOCK

Jean Foillard Morgon Côte du Py 2023

WARNING: the capsule of this bottle is made of food-grade wax. To open it under the best conditions, push your corkscrew directly through the wax, and once it is well into the cork, pull sharply (without using the lever if you have a waiter's friend), in short, "the old-fashioned way." This is the best way to avoid "crumbs" in the bottle!

When they were released from the winemaker's cellars in November 2025, these 2023s were still quite closed and deserved a few weeks (months?) of aging before tasting.

Technical sheet written by the domaine

Climate Côte du Py: decomposed granitic schists and manganese, area located in the south of the appellation

Grape variety: Gamay noir à jus blanc.

Bottling: filtered and lightly sulfited at bottling.
